Combined Universities Centre for Rural Health (CUCHR), in partnership with WA Country Health Service and Disability Services Commission, has developed an on-line Cultural Orientation Plan. The package, inclusive of information, videos, activities and links to further resources, consists of five self directed learning modules: CUCRH http://www.cucrh.uwa.edu.au 167 Fitzgerald St Geraldton 6531 (08) 99560200	Much of the content is generic to all health professionals	Free	Online	RACGP accredited. RCNA accredited	It is a generic program providing a framework of information and associated links that can assist health professionals to develop a deeper understanding of Aboriginal cultural values and practices, and promote culturally secure practice. This online activity takes approximately 2.5 hours to complete <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Once enrolled in the course, users can choose when and how long to complete the program. (If a participant does not access the program after 120 days, they need to start again.)</li> <li>• Five self-directed learning modules</li> </ul>
Interactive Ochre It is an interactive online resource delivering an Aboriginal perspective on cultural awareness training http://sielearning.tafensw.edu.au/toolboxes/toolbox907/index.htm It is worth having a look at this fantastic resource. Unfortunately the Govt Dept that developed it no longer supports or promotes it. However NSW TAFE does still use it.	An induction package to prepare service professionals to work more effectively with Aboriginal people.	Free	Online	Non-accredited or endorsed.	There are a series of activities that can be undertaken that challenge the learner's knowledge and engage the learner in a layered process. The summative assessment requires the learner to apply the content concepts in their workplace context and to plan an event working with Aboriginal people. This requires application of the learning into workplace action.
